Judith

EXHIBITION St Peter's Abbey, Ghent

Judith

A Carolingian princess in Ghent?

Visitors can reopen a special whodunnit that was abandoned in 2006 due to lack of evidence. The backdrop to this riveting story is Ghent's St Peter's Abbey, once the final resting place of the Counts of Flanders. Archaeologists, historians and biological anthropologists join forces to examine grave S127, uncovered during the construction of an underground car park.

Together with the researchers, take a deep dive into the science and try to piece together the puzzle of Judith's life, a queen's daughter and the first Countess of Flanders. You'll find out all about the decisive Judith, a fascinating young woman who took her fate into her own hands and stood up to her royal father. The research will whisk you back in time, to the treasures and intrigues of the Carolingian elite, and the maelstrom of familial wars from which the County of Flanders emerged.

Children visiting the exhibition will receive a genuine friendship booklet by the princess, in which she gradually unveils her dreams and guilty pleasures.
