

Ghent Rolin-Jaequemyns International Law Institute

The Ghent Rolin-Jaequemyns International Law Institute (GRILI) is a research institute within the Faculty of Law and Criminology at Ghent University. It brings together the existing expertise within the law school in the broader international law domain.

Our activities span the entire realm of public international law, ranging from the law of armed conflict and international human rights law, to the law of the sea, international environmental law, international criminal law, and international economic law, as well as the history of international law.
