

Mycoparasites on fruitbodies of Russula and Lactarius

Kadri Pöldmaa

Members of Russulaceae are inhabited by Hypomyces species each growing on a particular group of species of Lactarius or Russula. I shall introduce the specific associations and how molecular methods are helping to elucidate the host range of these biotrophic parasites that could benefit even more from the input of the Russulales research community.